Necoflex has been a leading supplier of specialist products to the construction industry in Ireland for over 30 years. Having represented Monarflex of Denmark (pioneers of multi-layered reinforced construction membranes) for most of that time, our long serving and committed team of staff has acquired considerable knowledge and expertise. Better known for our high quality reinforced Scaffold Sheeting and Roofing Felt in the early years, we expanded in 1994 and started the careful development of several innovative solutions to protect the health of building occupants from the harmful effects of radon gas. Our technical team is called upon regularly by designers to assist them with their radon protection strategies and we've been involved with many of the largest housing and commercial developments undertaken here. From our headquarters in Dublin and through our national network stockists we offer you the Ireland's most complete range of radon gas protection membranes, scaffold sheeting, acoustic flanking and acoustic flooring solutions.
